

6516208956.txt

For years, broadcast radio stations have begin increasingly nationalized and de-emphasized local content. Those that have maintained local content, such as Washington DC's WTOP floodthe signal with 50% commercial time. Now some of us wish to pay to escape that radio hell and we should not be denied the right to do so.

XM radio should be allowed to broadcast traffic and weather to their paying customers who have expressing their needs by subscribing to the private XM service.